

Stavros Athanasiou

Stavros Athanasiou is Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology in the University of Athens Medical School and director of Urogynaecology and pelvic floor reconstruction unit at the 1st Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. He is currently the elected president of EUGA (European Urogynaecological Association) and president of the Panhellenic Urogynaecology Association (HUGS)

Stavros Athanasiou received basic medical training in Medical School of Athens. He specialized in Obstetrics and Gynaecology at King's College Hospital, London and is a Member of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (MRCOG).

He had subspecialty training in Urogynaecology at Kings College Hospital under Prof. L Cardozo.

In 2000 he established the Urogynaecology and pelvic reconstructive surgery Unit of the 1st Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology of the University of Athens, at 'Alexandra' Hospital, Athens. His urogynecology department today is the largest urogynecology unit in Greece, representing a tertiary referral center for pelvic floor problems and is accredited by EBCOG for providing subspecialty training in Urogynecology.