

Anis Feki

Anis Feki is the head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Hospital cantonal, and professor at the university of Fribourg, Switzerland.

Anis Feki obtained his M.Sc in physics. He specialized in Reproductive Medicine at Geneva University, where he obtained MD and PhD.

He has been working at Geneva University hospital from 2000 to 2008, covering different positions within this institution, and head of the Stem Cell Research Laboratory. He derived the first human embryonic stem cell line and the first iPS cells in Switzerland. Between 2009 and 2011, he completed a fellowship in University Catholic of Louvain.

Main areas of interest include stem cell research, and reproductive surgery.

He is reviewer of several international journals. Published more than 100 peer-reviewed papers. He is a past member of the Executive Committee of ESHRE, ESHRE representative within EBCOG and chair of ESHRE certification committee since 2019.