

Athanasios Protopapas

Athanasios Protopapas is Professor of Obstetrics-Gynecology & Endoscopic Surgery. He is Director of the Endoscopic Surgery Unit of the 1st University Department of Obstetrics & Gynecology of the Medical School, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece. His unit in Alexandra Hospital in Athens is a tertiary referral center for advanced gynecological endoscopic surgery. Since 2019 he also serves as elected President of the Hellenic Society of Gynecological Endoscopy, an affiliated Society both to AAGL and ESGE. He has been trained in gynecological endoscopy in Greece, United Kingdom and France, and has a special interest in advanced pelvic endoscopic surgery. His scientific work includes a large number of scientific publications in peer reviewed medical journals, the majority on endoscopic surgery and endometriosis.